an exciting study of the social and landscape phenomena of the estate landscape in recent years the post medieval landscape has attracted new interest from archaeologists historians and geographers concerned to understand the development of the historic environment one of the key structuring elements within these landscapes from the sixteenth century until the aftermath of the second world war was undoubtedly the landed estate however it was not until the late nineteenth century that any systematic attempt to quantify the presence of these estates was undertaken prompted by the move to democratic reform and the persistent link between political power and landed wealth yet the importance of the landed estate in structuring power social relationships and both agricultural and industrial production was not limited to the uk from the eighteenth century the link between the uk estates and patterns of landholding and exploitation in the colonies became increasingly complex and recursive this volume explores the relationships between the form and structure of british and colonial estate landscapes their agricultural management and the political structures and social relationships they reproduced the articles address themes as diverse as the creation and development of the agrarian landscape improvement ornamental landscapes and gardens and estate architecture overall it highlights the wealth and diversity of existing scholarship and suggests new directions for post medieval archaeology in this dynamic area of research before the late 1960s japan historians characterized the early modern japanese economy in what are typical feudal terms considered backward and stagnant it was argued that the economy eventually collapsed under the weight of its own internal limitations this narrative has given way in the past two decades to a new interpretation in which japan's pre industrial economy is portrayed as one of substantive growth and qualitative change the setting stage for modern development during the meiji era in the old industrial regions of the ruhr district germany upper silesia poland and the ostrava region czech republic coal as well as iron and steel have been the economic basis for many decades in the ruhr district important changes already started at the end of the 1950s in upper silesia and in the ostrava region however these processes started at the end of the 1980s together with the transformation of the economic and social system in these countries because of high unemployment steps are taken to modernize the economy and to retrain employees all three regions cannot develop out of their own strength but there are programmes in order to support this process through creole houses and merchant stores to sugar fields and boiling houses jamaica played a leading role in the formation of both the early modern atlantic world and the british empire architecture and empire in jamaica offers the first scholarly analysis of jamaican architecture in the long 18th century spanning roughly from the port royal earthquake of 1692 to emancipation in 1838 in this richly illustrated study which includes hundreds of the author s own photographs and drawings louis p nelson examines surviving buildings and archival records to write a social history of architecture nelson begins with an overview of the architecture of the west african slave trade then moves to chapters framed around types of buildings and landscapes including the jamaican plantation landscape and fortified houses to the architecture of free blacks he concludes with a consideration of jamaican architecture in britain by connecting the architecture of the caribbean first to west africa and then to britain nelson traces the flow of capital and makes explicit the material economic and political networks around the atlantic written by various experts in the field this volume of thirteen original essays explores some of the most significant theoretical and practical fault lines and controversies in seventeenth century english literature the turn into the twenty first century is an appropriate time to take stock of the state of the field and as part of that stock taking the need arises to assess both where literary study of the early modern period has been and where it might desirably go hence many of the essays in this collection look both backward and forward they chart the changes in the field over the past half century while also looking forward to more change in the future some of the essays collected here explore the points of friction vulnerability and division that have emerged in literary study of all periods at the end of the twentieth century such as theory gender sexuality race and religion others are more narrowly focused on fault lines and controversies peculiar to the study of renaissance and seventeenth century literature at the same time nearly all of these essays examine and illuminate particular works of literature they engage theory but they also illustrate their points concretely by enacting practical criticism of works by authors ranging from bacon to

What emerges from the collection is a sense of the field's dynamism and vitality. The dominant mood of the essays is a cautious optimism and while the contributors are by no means complacent they all share a belief that the fault lines that have emerged in the field are variously and valuably instructive by exposing these fault lines the essayists seek a means of acknowledging differences and disagreements without covering them up they also constructively suggest ways of addressing the issues as a prerequisite to bridging them by broaching some of the most significant questions that animate the study of early modern literature at the turn into a new century this volume will be of great value to any student or scholar of seventeenth century literature
